The Hazards of Antibiotic Abuse

Every medicine has a certain amount of toxicity; the abuse of antibiotic may impair the nervous system, kidney, and blood system. People with idiosyncrasy may generate severe allergic reaction, even fatal harm.

After the suppression or killing of sensitive bacteria by antibacterial agents, some insensitive bacterial or mold may still grow and proliferate which give rise to new infections; it is commonly seen among patients with long term abuse of antibacterial agents. This situation causes trouble for the treatment, which leads to a high rate of mortality.

At the time of a majority of ordinary bacterial being killed by the antibiotic, the pathogenic bacteria, with original inferior position and drug resistance, survive and breed with a large amount. To a great extent, super-bacteria are expedited by the abuse of antibacterial agents.

The abuse of antibiotic has a significant influence on the beneficial bacteria community in the intestine; it may involve into the normal function of the immune system of the human body, and ultimately significantly impede the treatment of cancer.
